Family Access - Fighting for Children's Rights,

with the gracious support of Steel Partners Foundation, will host the 2021 conference

This two-day conference will focus on the presentation of effective strategies for family courts which must identify parental and grandparental alienation and then deal with it. For understandable reasons, family courts have been challenged by this problem. This conference will present a toolbox for litigants who must turn to the courts for assistance.

Participants will be presented with evidence that:

- Parental alienation is a serious form of child abuse
- Parental alienation is very damaging to children
- Parental alienation can have several lifelong consequences

This program will present and discuss strategies for:

- Attorneys who represent families that are dealing with parental alienation
- Exposing the alienating parent as the source of the problem
- Effective treatment of alienation
- Mental health professionals who must establish parental alienation in court
- Parents and grandparents who become targets of alienation

This two-day conference will provide continuing education credits for both mental health as well as legal professionals. This conference will be virtual through
